The measures to be taken to stamp out the plague and prevent its recurrence will be found explained in the Governor's speech. Taipingshan is being cleared of its inhabit. ants and disinfected, and as soon as the necessary legislation can be passed it is to be razed to the ground and the land resumed by the Government. The district will then be laid out afresh, new streets being made, and the ground will be sold on new leases containing stipulations as to the sanitary construction of the houses and the prevention of over-crowding. The Legislative Council will also be asked to vote money for the increase of the water supply and presumably the Sanitary Board will be made the Water Authority. In conversation yesterday with a gentleman connected with the Chinese Imperial Contoms, who has just come from Mengizu Yunnan, our representative gleaned a few facts with reference to the plague in that district: The disease there is of annual recurrence, and manifests itself immediately on the arrival of the rainy senson, disappearing with the advonof the cold weather. This fact is slightly at variance with the medical opinion that plague belonge essentially to temperate climates, but is explained by the emanations rising from the soil when moistened by the rains and evaporated by the sun. The fields, too are just at the time plonghed for the rice crop, and the disturbance of the filth which has been laid down during the winter is amply sufficient to account for the occurrence of plague. The disease, our informant says, is allowed to go unsheeked and uncombated and runs its fatal course right accept it in their usual apathotic and submissive way, taking no sanitary precaution and attempting no medical treatment. 31st May.

I have recently paid a visit to labaisan, a lofty rocky islet standing out of the Poynur 134,470 Lake. The bill is called the Great Boot Hill from its resemblance to a Chinese shoe. From some positions it is very much like a steamer, it in high and sharp in front like the bow of a ship and lower and broad at the stern and to complete the resemblance a high payoda rises a little forward of the centre of the island which very wall corresponds to the funuel. The water extends for 4 or 5 to 9 or 10 miles co sither side to the shores of the mainland which are either low or bounded 1 by foot bills. The island is a great resort for those who have fovours to neek from the idels for it is a great Taoist stronghold. Steps have been out with considerable labour and expense up to the summit and all the way up are shrines co tamina more er less formidable idela.
